

Seas of Green and Brown

for Brass Ensemble

by Murray Robertson (2003–)

Duration ~ 9'30"

Instrumentation:

4 Trumpet in B-flat (all double Flugelhorn)
4 Horn in F
3 Tenor Trombone
Bass Trombone
Tuba

Notes to the Performers:

Care should be taken to observe the dynamic markings in this piece very literally. As opposed to using crescendi and diminuendi as markings for phrasing, they should be treated as moving between specific levels of amplitude. While this should be done in a musical manner, there should be a consistency in the volume of various markings across different players and different locations in the music. As opposed with other styles, do not exaggerate the dynamic gestures beyond their literal definition. That said, try to keep each level (ff, f, mf, mp, p, pp, ppp, and niente) as distinct as possible, and spaced apart evenly.

Articulations should be treated generally soft, avoiding any harsh entrances except in the middle of piece where the music becomes more intense.

A copy of the score, should be made available to the musicians. It is encouraged they observe how their rhythms and dynamics differ from the other player with whom they might normally be in unison.

Program Note:

In the Spring of 2024, while living in Tallinn, Estonia, I spent (for the first time in about 6 years) a significant amount of time away from playing the tuba. While I still picked up the horn a couple of times each week, I did not spend enough time with it. This was in comparison to the previous semesters of up to 40 hours of rehearsal and practice each week, making for quite a contrast. Among many other things, I missed playing, and I missed the sound of brass instruments. Looking ahead to working with marching bands and restarting my regular playing routine, I spent time dwelling on the characteristics of brass music. This piece, Seas of Green and Brown, is a meditation on those feelings of missing something. What better medium for the meditation than the sounds that I was missing so dearly?

The title comes from a part of those emotions— that there are seemingly insignificant or blasé details that remain so vivid amongst memories that amplify the sensation of missing something. The forests of southern Ohio, particularly within the Appalachian mountains, are hard to forget anyway, but their colors remained so vivid within my memory. Being 4,500 miles made me linger on their detail. While this music is time spent thinking about so many things, it can only have one title. In that same way, despite the much more significant memories of friends, family, making music, and the culture that I call home, it was the colors of the Ohioan forests that stood at the forefront. All those memories could only have one detail on their "front cover".

While not the original compositional goal, the depth in this music is developed from the detail within the dynamics of each phrase that make up the thicker textures. There is hardly a single beat without some sort of dynamic gesture written into it, and this complexity differing between each player makes for not just a thick texture, but a fluid one (along with a lengthy engraving process...). The piece is constructed in three sections, beginning with shorter phrases that grow and thicken into a moving texture where melodies rise and decay again. This texture then intensifies into a much more turbulent and detailed phrase which resolves into a resounding and powerful harmony where the brass sound becomes more pronounced. This sound then decays and comes back to rest; the phrases shorten again, finishing with one final push back into silence.

Detailed description of the musical score: The score is for measures 150 through 154. It features a woodwind section (Tpt in B♭ 1, Flug. 2, Tpt in B♭ 3, Flug. 4), a horn section (Hn in F 1-4), a tuba section (Tbn. 1-3, B. Tbn., Tba), and a timpani section (Tbn. 1-3, B. Tbn., Tba). The woodwinds and horns play melodic lines with various dynamics (pp, p, mp, mf) and articulations (accents, slurs). The tuba section provides harmonic support with sustained notes and dynamic markings. The timpani section plays a rhythmic pattern. The time signature changes from 2/4 to 3/4 at the end of measure 153. The page number 34 is in the top left, and the title 'Seas of Green and Brown – Transposed Score' is at the top center.

The musical score is arranged in five systems, each corresponding to a measure number (185, 186, 187, 188, 189) at the top and bottom. The instruments are listed on the left: Flug. 1, Flug. 2, Flug. 3, Flug. 4, Hn in F 1, Hn in F 2, Hn in F 3, Hn in F 4, Tbn. 1, Tbn. 2, Tbn. 3, B. Tbn., and Tba. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, slurs, and dynamic markings (pp, p, mp, mf). The key signature is one sharp (F#) for the woodwinds and one flat (Bb) for the brass. The time signature is not explicitly shown but appears to be 4/4 based on the note values.
